

Above: The Council and Ceremonial House at the National Tribal Grounds in Ochlocknee, Georgia.

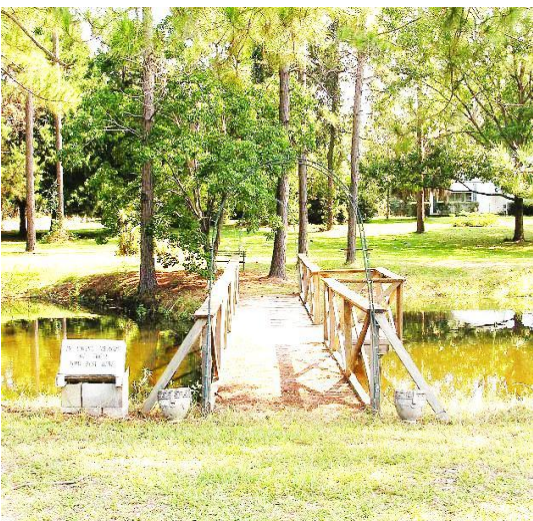

Above is seen the Tribal Drum and drummers.

Some men of the tribe.

Dancing in regalia in the Ceremonial House is an important part of our ancestral culture.

Above: The Ceremonial Bridge on the National Grounds.

Feasting at the "Elders' Table".

Below are seen the stones that comprise the Medicine Wheel at the National Tribal Grounds. These stones are ever changing and growing in numbers.

Lee Uwoyeni (The Hand) is center above as he tells Cherokee legends the young people.

Chief Panther with members and children. The National Tribal Grounds is a happy place.