

Tribute To A Chief:

Starr Thunderfoot Macauley

By Jim Howling Wolf Allison

In our daily choices we either sow to self or sow to others. With our actions and thoughts, we plant seeds that reflect what kind of person we are growing into and the level of impact our life has on others.

Starr Thunderfoot Macauley's life was like a stream of cool water flowing from her to those who thirst. Even in spite of her own problems, she always gave and cared for others. The love and compassion she gave should be a lesson for us all.

Thunderfoot and I were very close. We shared love and respect for each other as well as sharing our lessons of life.

She will take to her final resting place her "track record" of life as well as an Eagle feather, for she WAS s mighty warrior for her people. Although she has left her flesh suit, her spirit is with us.

May she rest in the arms of the Almighty Creator forever!

Howling Wolf

Left to right" Spirit Eyes, Teensi of Cherokee Honor Guard, Running Bear.

At Highland South Cemetery in Seymour, Tennessee

Above: Howling Wolf, Dancing Bear, Spirit Eyes.

Above: people at graveside service of Starr Thunderfoot Macauley on March 1, 2013

Thunderfoot's brother Scott Camil.

Eric Camil, brother of Thunderfoot